Job Description

These tanks are part of a larger tank farm in a relatively sensitive region of Kermit, West Texas USA, for Sid Richardson Energy & Carbon Inc.

Like many regions the advent of more stringent EPA requirements made it necessary for this firm to retro fit an impermeable membrane over their existing bund areas.

Rhino Linings plural component products offered a commercially viable option that allowed the plant to continue operations with little down-time and at reduced costs. The alternative would have been major civil constructions and then the client would still have to apply an impermeable membrane.
